

The British Museum

Engaging non-traditional volunteers

A partnership project with the Coram Foundation

Kusuma Barnett

Engage

to secure the services of

to employ

to involve

to attract and draw into conversation

Partnership

a relationship between two or more people carrying out a project with a view to mutual benefit

Partner

The CORAM Foundation

a charity established in 1739 and situated one km away from
the British Museum

The Parents' Centre

- helps parents acquire the confidence and skills necessary to seek employment
- and provides high quality childcare so that parents can participate in training and seek employment

Project brief

The British Museum is to deliver a training project to a group of disadvantaged young parents from Coram

- with the aim of improving their chances of entering the workforce in paid or voluntary positions

Project summary

a group of up to 10 clients who spend one day a week at the BM

for a period of 10 weeks

THE BRITISH MUSEUM

Kadee Torgy

Age 14

For her participation in the 'The British Museum' project and her contribution to the 'The British Museum' project.

Priscilla Smith

Director of Studies

British Museum

Engage

to secure the services of

to employ

to involve

to attract and draw into conversation